

Dear EuroSIDA participant,

All of us at the EuroSIDA coordinating centre would like to extend an overdue and utmost sincere gratitude in recognition of your personal contribution to EuroSIDA. In 2024, we reached an incredible milestone, celebrating our 30th anniversary since Jens Lundgren and Andrew Philips first conceived and initiated the pan-European HIV study in 1994. Your participation has since then helped shape the way we understand and treat HIV today. This leaflet is for you, to thank you and to provide an update on the major achievements we have accomplished together over the last 30 years.

With appreciation,
The EuroSIDA team

The Future of EuroSIDA

With your support, EuroSIDA will continue to lead important research to improve the lives of people with HIV in the years ahead.

- Biomarker research: Studying blood plasma samples to find signs that may predict how HIV progresses or responds to treatment.
- Long-acting treatment: Focusing on new treatment options that require fewer doses, like monthly or bi-monthly injections.
- Co-infections: Continuing to study outcomes and management of co-infections, including hepatitis and tuberculosis, and how they interact with HIV.
- Collaboration with RESPOND: EuroSIDA is a founding partner and key contributor to the RESPOND consortium, sharing valuable participant data to support broader research into non-AIDS comorbidities, their potential relationship to long-term antiretroviral treatment use and other relevant areas of HIV care. While actively collaborating within RESPOND, EuroSIDA continues its independent research activities under the guidance of its own Steering Committee.

EuroSIDA

Celebrating 30 years of EuroSIDA!

“ A Message from Lars Peters
EuroSIDA Study Lead

We are deeply grateful to everyone who has taken part in EuroSIDA. Your contribution has made a real difference in understanding and improving HIV care across Europe.

“ A Message from Justyna Kowalska
Chair, EuroSIDA Steering Committee

EuroSIDA was founded at a time when Europe was going through significant political and economic changes, especially in the European Union. It represents the collective effort of many researchers and clinicians working together across borders and political divides. I believe that we still have lots to do.

“ A Message from Jens Lundgren and
Andrew Phillips

We are proud that this study has persevered over three decades and contributed with crucial data which has had a positive impact on patient care and improved outcome. Moreover, EuroSIDA has now for 30 years served as a vital platform for training the next generation of HIV researchers and clinicians and we hope this will continue for many years to come.

Looking back: 30 years of Progress

Since 1994, EuroSIDA has collected clinical data from more than 25,000 people with HIV across Europe. Thanks to you, we now know more about how to improve the health and quality of life for people with HIV across Europe and beyond.

Together, we have achieved:

Over 300 research papers were published building steps for evidence-based improvements in HIV treatment and care.

- Your contribution has helped increase understanding of long-term effects of antiretroviral therapy and how to use it optimally.
- In result, treatment guidelines have been adapted to reflect real-life patient needs.
- Differences in HIV care between countries are being studied to ascertain that people living with HIV across regions receive the same quality of care.
